PRASZNYC CAPITULATES AFTER STUBBORN RESISTANCE SAYS REPORT FROM BERLIN.

AUSTRIANS WEAKENING

Fighting in Carpathian Mountain Passes Continue With Advantages to Russians Says Petrograd.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Berlin, Feb. 25.—The town of Prasznyk, Russian Poland, was yesterday taken by storm by German forces, according to official announcements given out in Berlin today. The Germans captured 10,000 Russian prisoners.

Center of German Attack.

Petrograd, Feb. 25.—The Germans appear to have concentrated their large forces near Prasznyk which is now the center of their attacks in the region north of the Vistula. The action near Oswiecim, which had been the chief point of attack by the Germans, is becoming less intense.

Serious fighting is reported also further to the north at Shitabin and Varnob, but there has been no information concerning the character of these actions.

According to official comment the Germans have exaggerated the magnitude of their victories along the western front and from the Russian viewpoint the fighting in northern Poland is "only now beginning."

The German claim that they have brought to a brilliant finish their winter campaign is characterized here as premature.

Object of German Claims.

A Russian officer expressed the view that the German reports were made in the hope of offsetting what he termed the loss of sympathy of neutral powers, particularly in the United States, as a result of Germany's submarine campaign in the war zone around the British Isles.

The German detachment which crossed the river Niemen at three o'clock on Feb. 23, had been scattered by Russian fire, and the part of this force has been captured.

Some of the prisoners had in their possession explosives and tools which they were intending to blow up the railroad leading from Vilna to Warsaw.

New Front in Galicia.

In Galicia the Austro-German forces have occupied a new front, extending from the Carpathians to Stanislau. The characteristic feature of this front is its thinness. The rear of the Austro-German line touches Roumania. The new communication is maintained not from the rear but from the flank, being parallel with the Carpathians.

In regard to the fighting about Prasznyk, the Russian report also says that the fighting is still progressing there fiercely, while the German report claims the capture of the city. It may be that the German report is later than the Russian one, and therefore, that the town may have fallen.

Escape From German Trap.

Petrograd, Feb. 25.—The escape from a trap of German troops of two regiments of the 29th Russian division who were surrounded during the retreat from East Prussia is recorded in an official communication given out by the general staff last night. It is stated that the German troops had been attacking the 29th division along the front from the Bobr district at Jedwado as far as the Vistula in the region of Podzamow. Minor successes for the Russians in the Carpathians are claimed as the result of desperate fighting. The communication follows:

"North of Grodno there were actions yesterday near Jasztobno and Stabine. In the Augustow forest two regiments of the 29th division who had been surrounded during the retreat, broke through the enemy's lines and rejoined our forces. Patrols of the enemy are attempting to cross to the right bank of the Vistula.

Fighting is continuing. On the right bank of the Narew where attacks by the Germans are continuing all along the front from the Bobr district at Jedwado as far as the region of Bodzamow on the Vistula.

"Fighting is becoming very intense in the Prasznyk region. On the left bank of the Vistula we repulsed attacks at the enemy at the village of Boguslaw and at points to west of Opotchno and Lopouszko.

"There has been desperate fighting east of Kupkow pass in the Carpathians. Our troops have had several successes in the region of Munkato.

"At daybreak February 22, near Zawadka, we captured three lines of trenches on a height which is almost a German possession. The German attacking the heights were killed or taken prisoners.

"German attacks were repulsed south of Myto Koziojorka. We carried a height south of Duki after a stubborn fight.

"We checked the offensive of important forces of the enemy on the Doline and Salitche roads on the right bank of the Rozanika.

Deny Berlin Claims.

The general staff of the Russian army has issued a statement concerning the recent occurrences in Russian Poland and the German claims to a sweeping victory which reads as follows:

"Official announcement given out in Berlin to the effect that the 10th army suffered several reverses in its retreat to the rivers Niemen and Bobr are absolutely not correct. The German declarations that the 10th army has been completely annihilated can be categorically denied.

War News Summary.

The second week of Germany's submarine campaign opened today with the loss of another British ship. The Depthford, a small steamer, was sunk off the British coast by a mine or torpedo. Previously ten vessels, seven of them British, had been sent to the bottom.

Germany apparently is preparing for three submarines have been sent to extend the field of these operations, to Pola, presumably for use in the Adriatic and Mediterranean.

The American proposals for cessation of this formal warfare and the admission of food supplies to Germany are before the German and British governments, but there are no indications whether they will find acceptance.

Germany's claim to an overwhelming victory in East Prussia resulting in the virtual annihilation of the Russian tenth army is denied categorically by the Russian general staff. The admission is made that two army corps suffered heavily during the retreat, but the remaining corps are said to have escaped from the German surrounding movement. Efforts of the Germans to clinch their victory by striking a decisive blow in northern Poland are leading to continuous battles along this section of the front.

Hardly less intense is the campaign in the Carpathians. The Petrograd announcement claims successes for the Russians in all engagements. Dispatches from the front to Swiss newspapers assert that the Russians are winning consistently and that the Austrians have lost more than 3,000 men at Dukla pass.

As to our other corps these troops after having foiled an attempt of the enemy to surround them, are holding today the positions allotted to them and for several days passed they have been engaging the enemy.

Gains Against Turks.

A communication issued last night by the general staff of the army in the Caucasus says:

"We made progress on February 23 in certain regions in engagements of secondary importance against the Turks. In the region of Trans-Choruk the Turks attempted an advance movement which was repulsed with heavy losses."

Russians Win in Carpathians.

Geneva, via Paris, Feb. 25.—Continued successes for Russians in the battle which continues to rage furiously in the Carpathians, are described in dispatches to Swiss newspapers. The Austro-German forces are said to have lost 3000 more men at Dukla pass, while melting snow revealed the bodies of 2000 Austrians and Russians.

The Austrians are reported to have launched a number of futile attacks near Dubova in which they lost heavily. The Russians captured at Groznik a transport wagon with the regiment safe containing 80,000 crowns ($20,000). The Russian claim to have captured an advance post with 600 men at Plase and are showing great activity at Zaklicze. The dispatches say that additional Russian columns have burst into Marmoros county in Hungary bordering on Galicia. Buckovina and Transylvania capturing convoys.

"WAR" RESOLUTIONS MEET WITH DISFAVOR

State Senate Does Not Take Kindly to Agitation to Neutrality and War Subjects.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Feb. 25.—The Wisconsin senate exhibited disinclination today to act hurriedly on proposed endorsements of President Wilson's neutrality policy or on the prohibition of shipment of arms and war munitions to belligerent nations.

It voted down a motion to consider any or all of these measures today, but finally fixed next Thursday as the time when it will consider all pending "war resolutions."

After considerable discussion on the measure, Senator Perry of Algoma, said:

"The only way to stay neutral is to stop agitation."

He added: "If you want 'The Marcellus,' 'Wacht am Rhein,' or 'Tippecanoe,' sung in this chamber, just start the ball rolling."

Both houses concurred in a resolution requiring that lobbyist's names be printed daily in the journal of each house. The assembly state affairs committee unfavorably reported the McGowan bill to prohibit the granting of a diploma to a student who smokes cigarettes.

The message asserted that the Dacia was 400 miles west of Lands End, England on that date and would proceed on her way to Rotterdam if not taken.

ENGLISHMEN RESENT U. S. INTERFERENCE IN BLOCKADE TANGLE

PUBLIC INTEREST AT HIGH PITCH IN ENGLAND AND GERMANY OVER WASHINGTON PROPOSALS.

NO CONTRABAND ORDER

Great Britain Still Delays Action Relative to Withholding Foodstuffs to Germany.—New Sea.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Feb. 25.—The proposals of Washington to Great Britain and Germany, which are in London assumed to embrace the abandonment of Germany's self-declared war zone, and the addition by the belligerents of some definite policy regarding foodstuffs for the civilian populations have noticeably quickened the public interest, both in this country and in Germany, in this delicate diplomatic situation.

The British press in general is restrained in tone, but the average Englishman plainly resents what he considers a hint at an attempt to interfere with the absolute blockade of Germany should Great Britain agree to enforce this with her sea power.

Withhold Contraband Order.

In the meantime and in spite of the sinking of four more British merchantmen, involving the loss of four lives, Great Britain still holds off from declaring food destined to Germany to be contraband. It is believed that this step taken that it will be postponed until the American proposal has been discussed at length.

Just what this proposal is the public both here and in Berlin is unaware. Its only hint has been gleaned from the meager and qualified dispatches from Washington. There would seem to be no doubt, however, that Great Britain will reserve the right to withhold contraband at any time she may deem it necessary, especially as Germany's so-called blockade has been enforced with all the power Germany has at her command for a week past.

How the British cabinet feels about this matter would appear to have been plainly indicated by the statement made by Foreign Secretary Grey, Premier Asquith and First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill, all of whom have more than hinted that a drastic retaliatory measure might be expected at any moment.

With War to End.

The premier pointed out that Mr. Churchill has declared with equal emphasis that he could not conceive of such a contingency as this, "but" added the premier, "I am in command of the situation, and I see no reason to differ from the views he has expressed."

RUSSIA CONSIDERING MEANS OF DEPORTING ITS GERMAN SETTLERS

How to Fill German Places Is Main Argument Advanced by Liberal-Inclined Persons Against Ousting Teutons.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Petrograd, Feb. 25.—The proposal to oust the German population from Russia on the basis of Recommendations made before the Imperial Council and several commissions and sub-commissions appointed by the government, which included the government purchases of all added property owned by Russian citizens of German nationality and the expulsion of these subjects from Russia, but owing to the difficulty of replacing the Germans, who occupy an important position in Russia's industrial scheme, the German problem still lies before the commissions with little probability of immediate solution.

The liberal-inclined members believe that while the Germans should not continue to enjoy the special privileges which have favored the German industry in Russia in the past, they should not, on the other hand, be thus summarily deprived of their rights in Russia, so long as they are not a danger to the Russian state and the extreme members of the Nationalist party favor the immediate expulsion of Germans at all costs.

As a practical measure, the whole question hinges upon the availability of other candidates to fill the positions now occupied by Germans. This German population does not exceed three per cent of the entire population, but it occupies the most important places in the administrative activity of Russia, both of a private and a governmental nature. The majority of bank and insurance companies, not to mention the most of the managers, are Germans; the same is true of university professors, lawyers, doctors, chief foresters, exporters, importers, civil engineers, printers and other professions. And at the beginning of the war, Russia viewed this condition of things with complacency, realizing that German motive power was indispensable to a country not yet trained to develop its own resources to their highest efficiency. The problem therefore, which Russia has faced since the beginning of the war is a complicated one, for which no ready solution has yet been suggested. Works that prepared ammunition for war, railroads and steamship lines for the transportation of troops and munitions, were directed by Germans. Works that prepared ammunition for war, railroads and steamship lines for the transportation of troops and munitions, were directed by Germans. And at the beginning of the war, Russia viewed this condition of things with complacency, realizing that German motive power was indispensable to a country not yet trained to develop its own resources to their highest efficiency. The problem therefore, which Russia has faced since the beginning of the war is a complicated one, for which no ready solution has yet been suggested. DOLLAR DAY CROWDS THROUGH THE STORES

GREATER BUSINESS IS DONE THAN AT ANY TIME SINCE THE HOLIDAYS.

SALES PLEASE PUBLIC

Merchant and Customer Together Profit by the Business Done Yesterday.

Once again Dollar Day has proved of benefit to merchant and customer alike. Everyone who had anything to do with the day is that much better.

That has been the history of every preceding Dollar Day held in Janesville which started the same way since the inauguration of Dollar Day, for the day had its inception in this city and has spread to all parts of the country.

Coming as it did this year after a rather dull trading period, the merchants were more than generous in their bargains. Greater values than ever before were offered the thrifty shopper and each and every one was rapidly taken up.

Before the proprietors of many stores had reached their places of business yesterday morning the shop- ping straight through the day. The only objections came from the clerks who at times were really over- worked.

The principal reason for Dollar Day was to draw to a larger radius for Janesville shoppers, offering such inducements that no one can afford to overlook them. The day brings people to Janesville who do not come often, thus is a losing proposition for the merchant as far as profit and loss is concerned but the effect on the community is such as to over balance the loss in the year's business.

The day has brought money to Janesville at a time when Janesville merchants were anxious to get it. In the words of one dealer it was an "outlet" in the desperate times.

One needed only to have watched the shoppers on the street yesterday to ascertain how they felt about the day. The following expressions from the merchants tell their various stories.

T. R. Costigan—"Dollar Day was a big success with us."

Hayley Bros., E. J. Murphy, Mgr.—"We had no Dollar Day bargain to offer but we are satisfied that our advertisement was in excellent company and was given the best publicity."

The Levinson Co.—"Dollar Day at Levinson's was what we expected of it and we believe Dollar Day is a great event."

Hinterschied's—"Our Dollar Day brought us 60 per cent more business than last month and we are pleased accordingly."

The Hub Clothing and Shoe Store, by Max M. Meisel—"We are well satisfied with the results of our Dollar Day sale."

E. J. Bailey—"Dollar Day was the best day we had during the month."

R. M. Bostwick & Son, per C. B. Bostwick—"Yesterday was the biggest day we ever had."

Chas. S. Putnam—"We sold 100 carpet sweepers, our Dollar Day gain, making yesterday the best Dollar Day this store ever experienced."

Dollar Day at Howard's store beat all other Dollar Days and the management would like to have a Dollar Day each week.

W. P. Sayles says Dollar Day was better than the last. A good ad, followed by a good window display of dollar articles, and good service made a great success with him.

Dollar Day with Smith's Pharmacy was as successful as usual.

New Gas Company reports a very fair amount of sales for Dollar Day.

E. J. Walker of the Klassen store reports a good day, much better than last year, and would like to have a Dollar Day each month.

Frank Douglas—"Dollar Day was fine. We are very much pleased. We sold out completely on most items and after our leaders were gone we took orders for as many more which will come in soon."

J. H. Burns & Son—"Dollar Day was just what we needed. In addition to our Dollar bargains we sold an unusually amount of higher priced articles."

Red Cross Pharmacy—"Never better. No other Dollar Day has ever equaled this."

Sheldon Hardware Company—"Better than ever before."

McCue & Buss—"Dollar Day was what more can be said."

Caldwell & Snyder, Boot Shop—"Larger day than last year and we are better pleased with it."

Has, Sutherland & Sons—"Dollar Day gives better every year."

The Nickel Company—"More dollar bargains sold than last year."

H. M. Keating, Simpson, Garment Store—"Dollar Day has been a grand success. While not a new thing with the merchants of Janesville, this being the third year it has great advantages for both the merchant and customer. Future Dollar Day Sales will be given a great deal of attention so that it will pay the women of Janesville and vicinity to look forward to these events."

M. Dedrick of Dedrick Bros. says Dollar Day was away ahead of last year.

C. W. Diehl—"Dollar Day is a great event."

Safety Bros. & Sartell—"We did a great business on Dollar Day."

Janesville Floral Co.—"We continue to favor the Dollar Day idea."

Frank Sadler—"We are more than pleased with our Dollar Day sales."

O. D. Bates—"Dollar Day was a new venture for us, but we are satisfied with the business we did and believe Dollar Day a good thing."

Amey Rehberg Co.—"Our Dollar Day customers kept up busy all day long and we did a remarkably large volume of business."

T. P. Burns—"Our Dollar Day business was remarkable in point of sales."

RITCHIE IS EXPECTED TO TROUCE CHAMPION

American in Conceded: Excellent Chance of Winning Back Lost Laurels if in Condition.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, Feb. 25.—Willie Ritchie has an excellent chance to get back the laurels he lost to Freddie Welsh over in England last July, when they met at Madison Square Garden March 11. True, he would have to knock the champion out to win the title, and that seems wholly unlikely, but it is the belief in sporting circles that he will make a showing that will lead to a long distance bout for the title. Certain it is that if Willie makes a good showing, he will demand such a mix and Welsh will be forced by popular demand to give it to him. It is customary for a champion to give a return bout to the man he defeated.

From early indications the bout should be a hummer. There is a lot of animosity in Willie's camp over the fact that he was not given a return bout to New York today to start training for the bout.

It is pretty much agreed that the first really good man that gets a crack at Welsh over the long route is going to be the new champion. Freddie's showing in his last few affairs haven't been very classy exhibitions. Freddie has been performing pretty regularly of late and is to mix with Charley White in Milwaukee before he meets Ritchie in New York isn't likely to be a conditioner.

Brief Sport Notes

Waukesha Beaten: Waukesha high school basketball team was beaten at Elkhorn Tuesday night 30 to 22. The game was hard fought. Waukesha routing considerably, thus enabling Elkhorn to score many of her points on free throws. Janesville plays Elkhorn on March 12th in this city.

Y Team at Milton: The Y. M. C. A. basketball quint left for Milton this afternoon, where they play the college quint tonight on the big Milton floor.

Highs in Practice: The high school quint held a practice this afternoon at the close of school, despite the fact that there is no game until next week, with Jefferson.

New Bowling System: Captain Albert J. Huebel of the Y. M. C. A. bowling team has made a new ruling at the association. A bowler in order to be able to roll with the association team in the next scheduled match must hold an average of 150 for the 10 played match. In this way it is leveled more matches will be won and a greater interest kept up.

Class Teams Practice: The class basketball teams at the high school are drilling constantly, and when the tourney is played off some fast contests are sure to result. The teams now look like winners, as their team is composed of some of the best men out of the church league teams.

FENCING MASTERS SHOW VALUE OF BAYONET USE DURING PRESENT FIGHT.

(By Associated Press.)

London, Feb. 25.—The band of youths teachers and fencing-masters whose offer of services in the instructing of recruits has been refused by the War Office are evening scores by charging that the Office does not realize the important part of the bayonet in playing in this war on both western and eastern fronts.

They say the army heads are unable to overcome the prejudice against the bayonet inherited from the experiences of the South African campaign, and fail to read the new lessons of warfare.

The bayonet was first pronounced obsolete in the Spanish-American War. In the few cases where fighting was done in the Philippines at close quarters, the Americans used their guns as clubs throwing away their bayonets as nuisances. This was also the verdict of the British in the Boer War. In the Russo-Japanese campaign, however, the bayonet returned to favor, with the result that the American Government reconsidered its intention to abolish the bayonet, and this arm was also retained by the British.

Now come the reports of the constant use of the bayonet in trench warfare. Quickness of thrust and parry, of foot, eye and decision are necessary in this kind of fighting. But the drill sergeants, the judoists and fencing-masters complain, are loath to teach the old fashioned routine exercises, which would avail little against skilled antagonists or even against impromptu tactics vigorously pursued.

JOHNSON WILL MEET WILLARD AT HAVANA

Negro Pugilist Wires Former Trainer That It Will Be Impossible to Hold Bout at Juarez.

(Toronto, Feb. 25.—Tom Flannigan, who trained Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, in the fight with James Willard at Reno, announced today he had received a cablegram from Johnson, from Havana in which he said that he had called off the fight with Jess Willard set for March 6 at Juarez, and that the fight would occur there.

Flannigan gave out the text of the cable he had received from Johnson at Havana, as follows: "Will fight Willard here. Fight will draw as much as Jeffries-Johnson fight. There is not a chance for me to go to Mexico."

Don't talk about the big war in Europe to Harry Pollok, manager of the lightweights, Freddie Welsh. That is, don't discuss it if you wish to escape from Pollok with your life. That big war has just about deprived Welsh and Pollok of a fine chance to become millionaires. "After Freddie won that title early in July, his countrymen were wild to see him in action," says Pollok. "In fact, I had several fine big money-making matches arranged. By the end of August England and nearly the whole of Europe was at war. If it hadn't been for that war, we would certainly have made a fine stack of coin."

Failure to rub the fur on a recruit the right way has cost the Phillies a first base candidate. He is George Boye, with the Allentown Tri-State. He reported to the Phillies last fall that he was a cool reception and quit the team. Manager Moran asked him to report for spring training, but he declares he would not play with the Phillies any longer. The Allentown club, which retains title to his services, expects to dispose of him to Omaha in the Western league.

Matt Brock is now a big favorite in the south, because of his recent good work. He started off by knocking out Joe Harang, southern featherweight champion, in the fourth round of a mill at Danbury. Then he went to New Orleans and stopped Patsy McMahon in twelve rounds, and last week he stopped Bobby Reynolds in twelve rounds. They are making a row of matching Brock and George Chaney for a twenty-round contest in the Crescent City.

Billy Sullivan, the veteran White Sox catcher, and one of the greatest authorities on pitching, connected with baseball, says he has discovered a new method of using the "emery ball," the delivery of which was ruled out the same last summer. The emery ball, which is a good chance preparing the ball is not used. The ball will not have to be scratched, he says, and the cover mutilated like it was with emery paper. The substitute ball is placed on the smooth surface of the ball without any early motion that would attract the attention of the batter. It can be wiped off after the ball is pitched without anyone being the wiser.

If those interested in the American thoroughbreds will only lend their energy toward reviving the sport of racing in all states where once the sport thrived there is a good chance for favorable results. The feeling in favor of racing is growing everywhere. Even in Texas and California bills are being prepared advocating some sort of legislation which will legalize the era of interstate racing under state jurisdiction. In Missouri things look very favorable for the passing of a bill to regulate racing, and in Arkansas it is practically settled that a bill will be passed. The measure is being pushed forward by the business men of Hot Springs.

Charlie French, who once was a member of the White Sox and was last year with the Indianapolis American association team, is to go to the Salt Lake team of the Pacific Coast league next season.

In lamenting the passing of the old South End grounds, Ralph McMillan, of the Boston Journal, says: "The glory that was the glory of Boston's greatest baseball years has departed. With it has gone the association between bleacherite and player, the halcyon day when the humblest could reach over the fence and touch the very uniform of the most exalted stars." Fred Snodgrass believes that the range between player and humble rooter of the Hub has been lengthened.

Clarence Rowland's Peoria team showed considerable speed on the paths last year by stealing 349 bases in 138 games in the Three-I league. But the club didn't set a world record. Lee Fohl, Indian coach, managed a team that turned in better base stealing record than did the Peoria club of 1914. Fohl's Lima team of 1909, winner of the Ohio State league, stole 349 bases in 131 games. Fohl claims this is a world record.

WILL TRY EASTERN STYLE ON CHICAGO

Lakota Cardinals, After Education in Troy Game, Hope to Defeat Strong Chicago Five.

When the Janesville Cardinals line up against the Hamilton Park Triangles, a strong Chicago team, at the Auditorium Saturday night, they expect to execute a little of the eastern style of play against the Chicagoans. The difference of the system of play between the western and eastern brand of ball is widely marked by more efficient teamwork and teamwork on the eastern team.

The Troy five who walloped the Cardinals so badly and have trounced every western team of note on their tour, showed Janesville what real basketball was like according to eastern methods. Upon the easterners had certain plays which they went through and never threw at a basket until they had a sure shot, which they never missed. Four men were always stationed under the Janesville basket and this quarter passed the ball back and forth until one man was uncovered, who then would dash under the basket and score.

Members of the Troy five witnessed the conference game between the Chicago Maroons and Minnesota, at Minneapolis, two weeks ago, and every one of the team declared that an average high school team of the eastern state, who were versed in the improved style of playing, could have defeated either of the varsity fives. The mixing of the bounding ball off the floor and the swift underhand passes in their bewildering teamwork is superior to anything in the west. Individually the Troy five are not wonderful, but when it comes to united teamwork—they cannot be beaten. They have played eight years together, and have worked their plays down to perfection.

The Cardinals hope to show the Hamilton Park results of their education in the game Saturday night, and predict a close victory. The Triangles lay claim to the Illinois title, having defeated the Peoria Tigers, who were the Belvidere five a tramping at Rockford recently.

CHICAGO FANS EXPECTING WHITE TO DEFEAT WELSH; WOLGAST HURTS ARM AGAIN

Milwaukee, Feb. 25.—Charley White, Chicago's pet lightweight, is full of confidence of beating the champion from Freddie Welsh, who is expected to visit the ten round no decision mill at the Auditorium tonight. Both principals weighed in below the 135 pound mark at two o'clock this afternoon. White showed exceptional form and the general opinion that he will give White a better run than he did, in their first meeting. Chicago fans will watch White with interest for he has declared his intention of forcing the fight tonight with the aim of dropping Welsh for the count.

Ad in Bad Form.—Johnny Dundee has been substituted for Ad Wolgast for the ten round mill here Friday night with Leach Cross. Wolgast injured his broken arm while training and Dundee readily agreed to meet the New York veteran.

Kilbane is Signed.—John Kilbane and Kid Williams, champions in the feather and bantamweight divisions, have been signed for a ten-round mill to be staged here on April 17th.

HARRY STONE WILL HAVE FIRST BOUT IN THE WEST AT OSHKOSH ON FRIDAY

On Friday night, February 26, 1915, at Armory B, Harry Stone, the welterweight champion of the world, will meet Frankie Nelson, the Jersey whirlwind. Stone's reputation is known in every corner of the globe where boxing is known. He recently returned from Australia and England where he won both the lightweight and welterweight titles and at present is the holder of the belt championship of the world.

Nelson is the youngster who set New York talking about him when he handed Jack Britton a licking as Jack ever got. When one remembers that Britton is the only lad that ever gave Packey McFarland a trouncing, it can readily be seen how fast Nelson must be to accomplish this.

WILL SEE THE WORLD THROUGH BABY'S EYES

Child of Blind Couple Blessed With Sight at Birth Causing Parents Much Happiness.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Colorado Springs, Feb. 25.—In a little home at Lake George, 25 miles from here, there is a baby boy, who, when he grows up, will be able to tell his father, a mother and a brother and sister, of the beauty of the mountain region in which they live, but which have been shut out to them throughout their lives.

This baby, the pride and wonder of the entire district, possesses the blessing of sight, denied all other members of the family. The baby's father is Benjamin Richards. He is blind. The little mother now the happiest woman in all Colorado, was Miss Myrtle Higby. She was born blind. She was a student in the State School for the Blind and while there met Benjamin Richards. His sight had been destroyed in an accident.

Drawn together by their affliction which sent them through the world in darkness, and the little blind girl were married. Five years ago a baby girl was born. Anxious, they waited for the word that would tell them whether the innocent little new-come had also entered the world in darkness. Their hearts were torn when they were told the baby girl would never see. Three years later a baby boy arrived and he, too, had been denied the gift of sight.

Two years passed. A little girl, now five years old, played in a world of darkness about her mother who had never seen the light of day. A little boy groined about the floor, his sightless eyes turning toward his mother when he knew only by the sound of her voice, or the touch of her hand from her hand. It was a home of darkness. Father and mother unable to look upon their children and the little ones growing and blossoming despite the blight cast upon them at birth.

But neighbors told mother and father that the little ones were pretty children and she smiled and cuddled the little hands and faces she could not see.

Some friends accompanied the man of medicine to the Richards home. They knew of the prayers of the mother and father and of their hope. The doctor could only tell them that he could not see. There was pre-natal influence to be overcome. Before him was the sightless mother. Waiting with the mountain friends was the sightless father and the children of night. The doctor came from the room. His face was wreathed in smiles. He grasped father Richards by the hand.

"A boy, seven and one-half pounds—and perfect eyes! He sees! The big man told the father even as he himself was almost overcome with emotion."

There were tears of joy in the Richards home that day. Though they did not know just why, the childish laughs of the little ones of darkness carried a new note of cheer and hope.

NATION'S SCHOOLS NEED SUPERVISION

PROF. TAFT CLAIMS

Former President Suggests a National University for Purpose of Inspection and Standardization.

(By Associated Press.)

Cincinnati, Feb. 25.—Prof. Wm. H. Taft, former president of the United States, was the principal speaker on the program of the department of superintendents of the national educational convention here today. His address was on the question "Is a national standard of education practical?"

The remainder of the session of the convention was devoted to discussion of "School curriculum and organization." Among the speakers on this topic was David Snedden, commissioner of education of Massachusetts, who in the course of his address paid tribute to Gary, Indiana, in so far as schools go.

"As I see it," he said, "the Gary plan provides excellent foundation in practical experience of a kind now popularly described as 'vocational' education. The Gary plan can readily be made to include vocational education, and if adopted in the progressive cities having different conditions would probably do so."

Prof. Taft said: "The cause of free public education is more sacred and of more fundamental importance than almost any other before our people. It is one of the people and commands the greatest and most willing self-sacrifice by the taxpaying public. The consequence of this fervor is that our school system are not as much scrutinized as they should be. Indeed it is now difficult for the public of a community to learn the facts as to the thoroughness of the discipline and of the knowledge imparted in their schools or of economy in the expenditure of their funds devoted to education. Parents are themselves unable to pass upon the results of a public school system in a town, county, or district in such a way as to make their opinion the best criterion. Hence there is a great opportunity for fraud and shoddy in product concealed under a cloak of pretentious curriculum and growing annual reports."

A National University.—"What we need in the country is an opportunity for standardization and comparison of school systems in the different states and different cities. This, I think we might have by establishing what Washington recommended—a national university in Washington."

The bureau of education might well be enlarged into a university which should not be a teaching university but one with a corps of experts who could offer to the people

THE BARNACLES.
In the maritime trade it is customary every so often to take a ship in dry dock and scrape off the barnacles that attach themselves to the hull and impede the progress of the vessel. We read of sailing vessels in the olden days being taken into sandy coves and the task done by careening the ship. What is true with our vessels that sail the high seas is true of the ships of state of various localities. It is particularly true of Wisconsin, and now that the republican party has thrown off the "Old Man of the Sea" that was strangling its very existence it is necessary to go even further and scrape off the barnacles.
The Evening Wisconsin suggests that the people of Wisconsin want lower taxes. The reason why they want lower taxes is that taxation has been increased at a reckless rate during the past fourteen years and is now a burden upon industry, commerce and individuals, embarrassing not only those who are engaged in competition with jobbers and manufacturers in other states where the taxes are lower, but also salaried people and wage-earners who are struggling to support their families on the proceeds of their toil. There is only one way to reduce taxation, and that is to cut down the expenses of government.
There is a reason for the demand that reform in Wisconsin shall begin with the cleaning of the commissions. The commission system of government is out of harmony with democratic institutions. It entrenches salaried officialism. It has been responsible for the creation of many superfluous offices. It places obstructions in the way of the voters seeking to get back to simplicity and eliminate useless expenditures. Had salaried officialism been successful at the last election it would have put a constitutional amendment in the path of voters aiming at reducing expenses, for one of the discredited and defeated proposed amendments to the constitution provided that when a legislature had voted an appropriation for a state institution subsequent legislatures should be denied the power to reduce the amount. By such preposterous endeavors do tax-eaters and tax-wasters endeavor to fortify themselves against the will of the people, whose substance they are filching and squandering or appropriating to their own uses in the form of salaries. Fortunately it was for Wisconsin that this vicious proposed amendment was overwhelmed by an adverse vote at the polls in November. Now those who devised it are coming forward unashamed and striving to create sentiment against the cutting down of commissions, claiming that the Wisconsin commission represents political progress in Wisconsin.
Can this specious outpouring of the intelligence of the public, or the support of men who have been sent to Madison to represent constituencies in the senate and the assembly? There is reason for hope that it will prove unavailing. The senate so far has stood by Governor Philipp by confirming his appointments. The legislature has received the recommendations of the annual message in a spirit that speaks well for the majority of its members, indicating that they, like the governor, are determined to give relief to the people. There is one way, only one way, in which the thing can be done. That is by cutting down expenses—by scraping off the barnacles that have attached themselves to the ship of state.

PEACE, NOT WAR.
Despite the efforts of the fingerist there is really no danger of the United States going to war with any of the European nations at the present time. In fact the United States really holds the whip hand in the situation and if the authorities at Washington realize the importance of the position they occupy they can make their own terms relative to any future diplomatic relations that may exist between the United States or any other nation. Meanwhile it is just as well to prepare for eventualities and listen to words of warning by experts in the line of offense and defense. The strong arm is often an excellent adjunct to diplomatic relations.
PLANS FOR SPRING.
Incentive for well-kept grounds, handsome lawns and flowering gardens always comes with the first advent of spring. Already the home gardeners have their sets of seeds growing in the basements ready for transplanting, perhaps six weeks from now, and the longing for the out of doors has already begun with the disappearance of the snow and ice. However, cold days are not over yet and while the ground has not yet thawed out for an early spring, and everything points in that direction, still definite arrangements for the garden can not be made as yet except to plan in a general way what is to be planted.
THE BASEBALL PROBLEM.
This evening the question whether or not Janesville will have a team in the new Bi-State league will be decided at a mass meeting of those interested in the subject. There is no good reason why Janesville should not be represented by a first-class aggregation of baseball players during the coming summer, and that the team wearing the Janesville uniform should not be on top of the percentage list. However it is up to those interested to decide this matter and it is hoped the meeting will be well attended to-night so that no question can be raised later as to the ultimate decision reached.

Chicago voters evidently showed that they did not want Carter Harrison to sacrifice his personal interests for a sixth term as mayor of their city, because he had already devoted too much of his personal time to his interests. Mr. Carter with his seventy thousand plurality should feel encouraged.
Now the war jingo writers again discover that within the next week Italy is going to enter the list of warring nations against Austria, this time with a view of regaining territory wrested from it years ago by the dual empire.

Former President Taft advises Americans to stand right by the flag and the president. He is perfectly right. The standing there is exceptionally good just at present, even if the ship purchase bill did not pass.
The Chicago News comments on Woman as in our hands.
"On woman, coy and hours of ease, But when elections wing the brow, A puzzling proposition thou."
The driving out of Illinois of such a man as Mr. Crane on account of its obnoxious tax laws, shows to what extent ill-advised legislation can go to the detriment of the whole community.

Keep on looking for that first robin but at the same time know just where the snow shovel is and how much coal you have in the bin.

They've named the baby Francis Sayre.
And to the kid they have been fair. If he'd been named for his grand-father.
He would have had some job. Well, rather.
It is indeed a strenuous game To lug through life a famous name. With all the "Lincolns" are in jail, Full many "Pierpont Morgans" fail. "George Washingtons" there are a number Who burgle houses while we slumber. So we are very glad they did Not hang a burden on this kid. It's up to him to stand alone. And make a name that is his own. He must have his own vim and pep And not get by on granddad's rep. There's many a loafer, many a boozier Who is named after some famous snooter. It makes no difference, don't you see, Just what you monicker may be. If you are out for fame or profit, It is right up to you—yourself.

Boneheads.

That there are nine boneheads in the bunch.

You think that some feller is crazy, but He also thinks that you are a nut. When you get down to the real brass and come to face the actual facts, We are all dotty on some one thing. We think we kin act or we kin sing; We think we kin criticize fine art; Or else we're foolin' for these come, And glory in throwin' the verbal bricks.
There ain't no feller who hasn't got Some eccentricity or soft spot, And so, you see, how it comes to pass That we all break into the bonehead class.

Economy is always to be praised. When a man smokes one corn cob pipe for nineteen years he is not much of a friend to the community, but the feller who has the candle at both ends may be extravagant, but it is cheaper than electric lights at that.

There are a lot of clumps in this world. Some fellers will drop a lighted cigar in a tank of gasoline and wonder why there is a fire.
There is no such thing in this world as a second-hand auto. It is either a rebuilt auto or a used auto.
A feller who is even 60 per cent eccentric can make good, but he has got to be a leader. The world is full of 50 per cent follers.

GIVES FINE PAPER ON THE DUTCH LIFE
Mrs. Albrecht Writes to Geographic Society of Dutch Customs and Manners.
A pleasing picture of Dutch life is drawn by Mrs. Florence Craig Albrecht in a paper prepared for the National Geographic society, in which she describes the life, however, shows how the little girls exactly duplicate their mothers in dress and the little boys must be appalled exactly like their fathers or be hopelessly out of fashion.
The writer shows how formerly every one of Holland's many islands and most of her many towns had their own particular and distinctive dress, and how, even in this day, in a little country less than a fourth of the New York, one may still recognize the places from which many people come by their costumes. She draws a picture of the Walcheren dames who drive to the butter market in Middleburg, descend from their wagons and chaises with much shaking of voluminous skirts and aprons, much patting of their comely Dutch caps, and much smoothing of their wigs.
"When the farmer's wife comes to town she replaces her workaday apron with one of black satin," says Mrs. Albrecht, "almost as long and full as her skirts; it is close shirred at the waist in many fine ribbons, her bodice is black likewise, but a shield-shaped tucker is frequently of gay color, ending far above the neck in a broad and very tight black velvet band."
With all their demureness of dress and bearing, the Dutch girls are fond of punter and fun. Ask one her name and she is likely to answer that her mother can tell it better than she can. "Mother knew it first," she has no objection to your knowing her name but she is a great tease at all times, says the writer.
"A tiny maid of four, a wee laddie unable to speak plainly wear precisely the same costumes as mother and father—full, long, black skirts, white cap, gold spiral, coral beads, and apron for the one; black cloth or velvet trousers and jacket, much adorned with silver buttons, silver-buckled shoes, and queer black hat for the other."
"The tiny baby pats and smooths and settles its many wide skirts, adjusts its beads, and feels its gold spiral, to be quite sure they are all as they ought to be, with as much care as its mother. It is close shirred at the waist in many fine ribbons, her bodice is black likewise, but a shield-shaped tucker is frequently of gay color, ending far above the neck in a broad and very tight black velvet band."

BLACK SEA UNIQUE THEATRE OF WAR
Geographic Society Says Body of Water is Least Regarded by Western People.
The National Geographic society in a statement on European War Geography, says of the Black Sea: "The Black Sea is unique among the war theaters. It is the least regarded by the people of the west, and yet, operations there may result in a permanent reorganization of European affairs. Half-possession has just served to what the desires of each of the two empires for full possession and the Ottoman and the Muscovite have long frowned at one another over the waters of this inland sea."
Enclosed on the north by the southern coast of Russia, on the east by Russian Caucasus, on the south and west by Turkey, in Asia and Turkey in Europe, and on the north-west by Bulgaria and Roumania, the Black Sea is in every respect an inland water body. Physically, it is a boundary between the east and the west; in reality, the life which surrounds it is strongly related to the Black Sea is in every respect an inland sea. Hence, there is little general interest in the military operations there among Americans.
The Black, Caspian, and Baltic Seas are about the same size, but of them all, the Black Sea drains the country of greatest natural resources, with the trading world, and, by far, the most advantageous connections. From east to west, the Black Sea has a length of 750 miles; its greatest width of 380 miles; and it covers an area of 180,000 square miles, or is considerably greater than the sum of the areas of the American Great Lakes. It has a coast line of 2,000 miles, and a large part of its central reaches the extreme depth of 6,000 feet.
"A million square miles of land in Europe and Asia drain into the Black Sea," the Danube, Dnieper, Don and Bug, of Central Europe; the Dniester, Eastern European; the Kur and smaller rivers, of Caucasus; and the Terek, Kizil Irmak, Sakaria and other rivers of Asia Minor carry enormous amounts of water to its basin; it rises and falls according to the increase and decrease in the volumes of its tributary waters. Of tidal action there is little or none.
Chief among the port cities are Odessa, Sevastopol, and Batum, in Russia; Trebizond and Sinope, in Asia Minor; Varna in Bulgaria; and Kostonia in Roumania. Greatest of all the commercial ports is Odessa, one of Russia's most important cities for the shipment of agricultural produce. Batum is a famous oil port. With the mouth of the Black Sea, the Bosphorus, corked by the Turks,

CHAMPION RECOVERS SILVERWARE STOLEN FROM M'CUE FLAT

Chief Champion Receives Anonymous Letter From Second Thief Who Aided Miller in Robbery.

Chief of Police Champion recovered
the missing silverware that was recently stolen from the J. W. McCue flat on North High street at three o'clock this afternoon.

The recovery of the stolen property was effected through the receipt of an anonymous and unstamped letter by the police this afternoon, written by the second party to the theft who informed Champion that the property was hidden in the woodshed on the rear porch of the McCue flat.

The letter states that the writer went with Miller for the purpose of stealing the silverware and took the silverware while Miller took the watch and money. After "doing the job" they separated and made plans for their escape.

The silverware thief saw Policeman Fred Abbott on the corner of the station and hid in the woodshed until four o'clock the next morning when he hid the silverware and left the place. He stated he staid at the police station and had made attempts to obtain the hidden loot but each time the woodshed was securely locked and he did not dare force open the door.

The anonymous letter was mailed to Chief Champion from this city at 10:30 this morning and was not stamped. The writing was very poor and the letter was in coarse wrapping paper. The letter was as follows:

"Pete Champion—The silverware is hid in the woodshed. I took it and he (Miller) took the money and watch.
I want to get the silverware, but I did not want him blamed. You need not get me for I have gone
south. Signed, XXXX."

The finding of the silverware and the confession of the writer of the letter shows that Miller in court when he gave his tearful confession for the alleged theft and that the silverware was hidden in the woodshed. It is thought the right man was named. The made.

FEDERAL VETERINARIANS HOPE CATTLE DISEASE CHECKED IN WISCONSIN

United States veterinarians returned from Lafayette county and Janesville today, after slaughtering a herd of cattle on a farm just across the state border line last week.
This is the only cause of the hoof and mouth disease in Wisconsin at the present time, the federal experts stated. They also declared that there was no indication that the disease would break out again without the malady spread from northern Illinois, where considerable trouble is being experienced. Several of the men who worked at Rock court were ordered to Kentucky, where the disease has broken out.

GIFFORD NOT LIKELY TO BE TRIED AGAIN.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Albany, N. Y., Feb. 25.—Indications are today that Malcolm Gifford Jr., will not be retried for the murder of Frank J. Clute, local chauffeur. Two juries, drawn to decide upon his guilt or innocence, have both disagreed.
Eleven of Gifford's jurors in his second trial voted to acquit the 19-year-old society lad. In view of this District Attorney Alexander, it is unstood, will not press a third trial. The defendant's attorneys are not even likely to ask for a dismissal of the indictment. The case will probably die a quiet death.

The young Hudson aristocrat has already taken up the threads of his life, broken several months ago by his arrest and subsequent trials for life. Released after his second trial under $25,000 bail, he has since summed up his school studies. With the completion of his prep school course he plans college work, looking toward a professional career.

FATE OF BALL NINE ON TRIAL AT MEET

Expect Large Crowd to Attend Baseball Meeting at City Hall Assembly Room Tonight.

Promoters of the Bi-State league
see a good opportunity of organizing a club in Janesville if there is the proper amount of support shown at the public meeting, which is to be held tonight at the city hall assembly room at eight o'clock. Officials who are backing the proposition of the new circuit will be present to lay their plans for the approval of the Janesville men and a good turn out is expected.

The prospects of putting a winning nine in the field have interested the business men of the city, who realize the value of organized baseball to the city from a business point of view, and the subscription list has found many generous signers. The main argument advanced by those who are doubtful if a league club could succeed in this city is that Janesville is not of the size to support a team.
Those who are in favor of the club claim that the baseball spirit here would draw the club making good and the drawing power from the smaller cities. The question will be thoroughly discussed tonight.

MADISON DEBATERS HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Fisher and Sherwood Sheldon
Prepare for Strong

morrow evening, when they are to oppose the Madisonians in the question: "Resolved, That the postal system be extended so as to include the entire express business."

The debate will commence at eight o'clock, and will be held in the auditorium-gymnasium at the high school.
The question involves a great deal of local interest, and the Madison club negative team, composed of Stanley Horwood, Harvey Fisher, and Sherwood Sheldon, are going to Beloit tomorrow night to meet the high school affirmative team of that place.

destined to become one of the great platform speakers of his day. In clear logical thought and choice of words he has few equals and he was given close attention and hearty applause.
The topic of his discourse was: "Mov-

COLLEGE STUDENTS ASK FOR DEFEAT OF BILL DENYING VOTE

Assemblyman Minckley Charges Liquor Forces Are Behind Attempt to Disfranchise Students.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 25.—Assemblyman Minckley's bill to disfranchise students at educational institutions unless they are self-supporting brought a big delegation of students and townspeople to the judiciary committee yesterday in opposition to the bill.
In opening the argument Assemblyman Minckley declared that the student vote could be controlled; that it defeated him for mayor when he was a candidate last year and that the student vote did not have a sufficient interest in Madison to exercise the franchise. He denied that the bill had been introduced at the request of the saloonists, and said that he believed that many of the students who voted were not old enough.

A committee representing not only the students at the university but those attending Marquette College, Appleton, Ripon and Beloit colleges and nearly all the normal schools protested against the passage of the bill. The argument in opposition to the measure was concluded by Assemblyman Minckley of Milwaukee, who at the end of a three hour debate declared that the real issue, back of the bill were kept in the dark.

Minckley Sums Up.
"They tell you that they don't want the student voting on taxes or on local affairs, but that is not the real reason," said Mr. Minckley. "Last year Madison was nearly voted dry, and these people are afraid that the beer glass will be taken from them.
I am not opposing the beer glass. I come from Milwaukee and I support personal liberty, but I would rather lose it than the right to vote."

Minckley declared that looking at it from a selfish interest it would be better for the socialist standpoint if the bill would pass. He said it would be a victory for the students at Marquette and Appleton and insure the socialist electing the mayor, a member of congress and other officials.
But he declared that this step would be followed in time by an effort to disfranchise the German element, because they were not the voters of property, and he denounced the bill as "rankest nonsense and freak legislation of the worst kind."

Arguments in favor of the bill were made by Assemblyman Carl Hansen of Manitowish, Elmore T. Elver, who said that the students of Madison appeared to be citizens, and in support of the measure. Assemblyman said that students at many of the other institutions in other states were not allowed to vote and cited a decision in a Massachusetts case that would give weight to the student vote in Madison. He claimed that the students were not financially interested here to pass on local affairs.

Mr. Elver, representing the student body, contended that the students had over $1,000,000 invested in Madison real estate in the form of apartment houses. Assemblyman Or-stie broke in with a remark that he had sent two children to the university and it had cost him $2,000 each to educate them, and he believed that they had some interest in whether Madison was a more or less city, a well lighted and policed city, and believed that they had an interest in local government. Elver denied that the bill was prompted by the liquor interests, but said if the measure passed the republicans would lose the first assembly district in Madison; that it would make uncertain the election of republican county officers and might change the balance in the congressional situation.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE GET-TOGETHER BUREAU.
Oh how I wish every town and every city in this country might have a get-together bureau!
What do I mean by that? Well, let me tell you a little incident. A young working woman was taken ill. The doctor ordered her sent to a hospital as she could not receive proper care in her boarding house. She lived some distance from the nearest hospital and to have an ambulance would cost her fifteen dollars. She was not absolutely poverty-stricken, but she was unable to pay for the ambulance. She made fifteen dollars a week, but even on that it isn't particularly easy to save and for the many expenses of illness made her look carefully to her board. Besides, she was saving for her trousseau. So instead of taking the ambulance she drove to the station, took a train and then drove to the hospital. The extra exertion was the last straw. She is on the dangerous list. And she needn't have been, the doctor says, if she could have been brought in comfortably.

They Didn't Know and There Was No One to Tell Them.
Now here's the point. In the city at this time there must have been a dozen people who would have been glad to put their automobiles at the service of this girl for a few hours, if they had only known the need. But they didn't know and there was no one to tell them.
That's the kernel of the whole matter. They would have been willing. But they didn't know. And the people who needed something could bring out of such miserable little needs and tragedies. And what's the point, your little neighborhood and my little neighborhood are full of them.

Bringing the Lift and the Need Together.
Now my idea of a get-together bureau is this, a committee with which people who have things they would give the need arise—time, the occasional services of a machine, old magazines, a tumbler of jelly, the loan of a library, flowers, the loan of a music machine—in short anything no matter how small or how large, could register their willingness to give. To that same committee the people who needed something could bring their need, and the get-together bureau would put them in touch with each other just the way the telephone girl thrusts in a plug and completes a call.

Perhaps the best part of it all is that no one would put himself definitely in either class. One might give as day, friends, not charity, not for instance a woman might register her willingness to send a tumbler of jelly to an invalid occasionally and the same woman might some day have a convalescent child for whom she might ask the bureau to find an occasional empty seat in someone's machine. Or a man might offer the service of his auto and some day find himself lonely and sick and ask the bureau for someone to read to him or to send him a home-made pudding.

A Big Clearing House for Kindness.
Don't you see it all? It is plain as day, friends, not charity, not anything formal putting the giver on one side of the fence and the recipient on the other, just clearing house for kindnesses of all sorts.
Why couldn't it be done? Get your Woman's Club to take it up or your Church (only of course it must have no denominational lines). Get about it in your local paper.
The season of seedtime is at hand. Wouldn't it be wonderful if this seed, too, should take root and bring forth what beautiful fruit of brotherhood and love.

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Some of my girl friends call me an old maid because I say it is wrong to allow a boy the liberty to kiss a girl good night. (2) Would it be all right to ask him over to lunch some time? (3) Would it be all right for me to go to his home for lunch or dinner?
CONSTANT READER.
(1) The young man probably loves you. But if I were you I would encourage his saying so until he is able to offer you a home. (2) Yes. (3) If you receive your invitation through his mother.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Should a respectable girl meet a fellow downtown or on a street? I. C.
Not under ordinary circumstances.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: When getting home from church should a girl ask her gentleman friend in for a ride? And how long should she stay?
A CONSTANT READER.
Yes. He ought to leave between 10:30 and 11.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is there any harm in writing notes to your boy friends in school?
Yes. You get in the habit of thinking of the boys and do not pay attention to your studies. Many failures in school have been the result of writing notes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me in what way I can straighten my pug nose? I. C.
There is no way to straighten it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am going to say places on Washington's birthday. Would a white summer dress and slippers be all right to wear?
(2) What kind of ribbons would be all right?
(3) I am thirteen years old; how should I wear my hair?
(4) Yes. (2) White.
(3) The way you always do. A new way of wearing your hair might make you self-conscious.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is there any remedy for chickenpox marks?
A. E. C.
They can be removed by the electric needle.

my friends told me that it was all right for a girl to kiss a boy good night. I never the less the remarks make me feel very uncomfortable.
T. B. E.
(1) My dear girl, you are on the right track; good times and popularity are not gained by kissing a boy. Boys almost invariably ask the girls with whom they have not become too familiar to respectable places of entertainment. The girl who can keep her friends by letting them kiss her is the exception. I think I see a very popular girl I think there is a girl who has not let herself become common.
(2) It would be easier for you to prevent a boy from kissing you than to prevent him for it. If you are on your guard you can usually tell what he is going to do. But if he should kiss you, tell him to stop, but firmly that if your friendship continues that sort of thing will have to stop.
(3) Say nothing and pretend that you do not notice or understand the remarks.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Look here, Amy," exclaimed George Goswald, "am I to understand that I am in for a row every time I ask a friend here for a meal? I am a southerner and the generosity of the south."
"Well, you are a generous young man," said Amy, "but I do not propose to run a regular hotel. If I do all my own work it's too much to ask me to get up an extra dinner every few days because Tom, Dick or Harry that you used to know happens to be in town. Let them go to the hotel!" retorted Mrs. Goswald.
George looked angry, but he kept a firm grip on himself. "Would you treated them to a dinner?" I could do that, but, having a home, I prefer to bring them here."
"I see no reason for your doing either one: they are as able to get their dinner as you are to get it for them," said Amy.
"Great Scott," Amy, exploded George. "It isn't a bread line, a question of eating or going without. I want a place to take my friends and visit with them. These boys are old chums. We have had all sorts of good times together. I have been entertained at Tom Graves' home, he's the only one who is married, but the others would be insulted to have me go to a hotel when in their town. You don't understand the situation."
"I understand it all very well. Not a week goes by but you trot one or company dinner," came back over the wires.

"Get a little one, then, I'm going to bring them out," and he hung up the receiver.
Mrs. Goswald was so angry that she determined to give her husband a lesson, so she sent the dressmaker home an hour early, undressed and went to bed.
George's heart sank when he approached the dark house. After making his guests comfortable, he tore upstairs and found his wife. "Are you sick, dear?" he asked, bending over her anxiously.
"Yes, sick of company," she replied.
He turned on his heel and left the room. Going to the phone he called up a caterer and ordered a dinner served at his home, explaining that he had company and his wife had been taken suddenly sick. When the caterer came he found her in her room. Amy realized that she had failed in her plans and heartily wished she could join the company.
Next morning she prepared a nice breakfast, explaining that her headache was gone and so gracious was she that the guests departed greatly pleased with George's wife.
George never had any more trouble when he wished to entertain his friends.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

WITCH YEAST.
One cup sugar, one cup salt, one quart potatoes (after peeled), one pint flour.
Boil potatoes until tender. Put sugar, salt and flour in crock, place colander in top of crock, pour hot potatoes and boiling water in which they were cooked into colander, mashing potatoes and pressing them through colander. Squeeze all together and beat until smooth and nice.
Let cool, then add a pint of good yeast, and water mixed with about two gallons. Keep in warm place for a day or two, then remove to where it is cool, but do not allow to freeze.
When you want to make bread, take one pint of this yeast for each loaf of bread you wish to make. Warm it by putting in a vessel and setting it in warm water, stirring all the time, being careful to let it get only until warm, then add flour and proceed as with other bread.
The nice part about this, it is always ready and bread can be made with short notice.
When you wish to make it again, save one pint of the yeast to start with.

POTATO DISHES.
Potato Omelet.—One cup mashed potatoes, one cup sweet milk, two eggs beaten separately until very light; add a little salt and a little flour; mix and beat all together; fry in butter until browned on both sides.
Potato Croquettes.—Two cups cold mashed potatoes, season with pinch of salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of butter. Beat two eggs and work all together thoroughly. Press into small balls slightly flattened, dip in beaten yolks of eggs, then roll either in flour or cracker crumbs. Fry in hot oil.
Potato Souffle.—Medium-sized potatoes; peel and cut in small dice; cook done with water enough to serve as many as eight persons. Drain brown, stir hard and flour in a spider, stir into the potatoes; pepper, salt.
Potato Ribbons.—Cut potato in strips. Have pan hot and put in tablespoonful of butter. Drain the potatoes, roll in flour, fry brown.

Line pan first with biscuit dough and put dough on top as for pie. Add water (one-half cup) but not too much. Bake in oven with a brown gravy.
Browned Potatoes With Roast.—Peel, cut and mash required quantity; adding while hot a little chopped onion pepper and salt. Press into small oval balls and dredge with flour, then place around meat and cook over brisk fire, almost reducing the liquid entirely. Sprinkle with chopped parsley when serving.
Stuffed Sweet Potatoes.—Bake potatoes, then cut off a slice lengthwise, scoop out pulp, mash and season with butter and salt, adding the stiffly beaten white of one egg, fill shells, dot with a little butter, place on dripping pan in oven ten or fifteen minutes.

UP-TO-DATE RECIPES.
Potatoes Hungarian Style.—Chop fine one onion and fry it in one cup of butter with half teaspoonful paprika. Add one good-sized tomato, peeled and free from seed, and cut rather small. Use six medium-sized peeled raw potatoes, cut into somewhat thick slices. Moisten with light stock or water, just enough to cover. Salt and cook over brisk fire, almost reducing the liquid entirely. Sprinkle with chopped parsley when serving.

FOR LITTLE FOLK

THE ADVENTUROUS PELICAN.
A pensive Pelican one day was standing by a pond, Profoundly meditating on his lot, He had been standing this way for perhaps an hour or more, And seemed to be asleep—but he was not.
Thought he, "I am a water fowl, that fact I won't deny; But even so, I do not understand, be gadding round, Just why I should remain here by this pond all of my life, I think I'll take a journey overland."
But when he told his parents of his plan to take this trip, They clapped their wings and cried in great alarm, "You'd better stay right here at home and not be gadding round, For certain as you do you'll come to harm!"
Although they warned him thoroughly it did no good at all; The Pelican had quite made up his mind.
Said he, "You may as well keep still—I start this afternoon To see just what adventures I can find."
So when they saw that he was bound to go, they hurried round And put some lunch up for him in a dish.
They said, "It's our impression, in a journey overland, The thing you'll miss the most will be your fish."
So he set out and travelled till he thought 'twas time for lunch. Said he, "I'll eat right here upon the ground." But as he was about to take a lovely bite of fish, Just back of him he heard a dreadful sound.
In much alarm he looked around and saw a big Wild-Cat, Who said to him, "Now, what are you about? I'm very fond of fish myself, so just hand over those." (They must have been cat-fish, beyond a doubt.)
The cruel grin and whiskers of the great big Cat were such The Pelican was almost dead of fright.
He didn't wait a minute to exchange the time of day; He simply up and flew with all his might.
And before so very long that pensive Pelican reached home, As frightened and as hungry as could be for those who like them, but They're a little mite too dangerous for me!"

Address your questions to Food Editor and you will receive a reply by mail or through this column.
Steak, Eggs and Cheese.
What is the comparative value of beef steak, eggs and cheese? I would thank you very much for this information.
Beef steak has a fuel value of about 1,050 calories per pound, eggs about 655 calories per pound, and whole cream cheese 1,885 calories per pound. Cheese is a food very high in protein and fat. In the above figures, the amount of digestion by different individuals is not taken into account.
About Catsup.
Please tell me if it is true that much of the catsup is made from apple cores and parings? Also does it contain coloring matter?
We do not believe that it is true that the bulk of catsup on the market is made of apple cores and parings. It is true, however, that some of the cheaper grades of an inferior quality consist of apple stock which is composed of the pressing of various kinds of apple debris. We know of no catsup on the market today that is artificially colored.
Dangerous Preserving Compound.
I am sending you a sample of a preserving compound. I want you to tell me if it is at all injurious. It is used very extensively in canning and keeps all canned goods nicely, I want to know if it is a safe preservative to use?
Mrs. E. J.
In reply to your inquiry beg to advise that the compound you submit consists largely of salicylic acid and should under no circumstances be used by the housewife for canning or preserving. Its use is entirely unnecessary and unwarranted for perfect results may be secured by proper sterilization.
Butter and Butterine.
In regard to your indorsement of oleomargarine it is possible that we get the same nourishment from these products that we do from butter?

A Layman's Lenten Sermon of Note

"It is well at times to stop the whirl of everyday life and take stock of ourselves. It is well to drop our common habits of thought and action and pay some heed to the inner life, without which no man's development can be complete," says the Oshkosh Northwestern.
"It is for this purpose that the Lenten season is observed in all Christian countries, and even though the observance may be varied according to the accepted religious creed or views of the individual, some sort of recognition is due from every man and woman who accepts the teaching of the Christian church."
"Now begins the brief period when we are expected to turn more than is our custom from the thoughts of business and our daily tasks, to consider that inner life and our relation to the powers that govern the universe. But it is not enough to consider abstractly the relations of man to his God. If we are to make the season fruitful for good we must consider each his own personal relation to his fellow man."
"The Lenten season was established in recognition of One whose life was spent in doing for others, whose life is the model toward which all of us may strive. What better recognition of the time can be found than to take some stock of our own relations to those about us? Such an observance cannot fail to make the time of the greatest value to the world and to humanity's betterment."
"In the most general form of observance of the Lenten season it is customary for people to temporarily eschew the gayeties of life and to abandon some of the pleasures of the physical senses and appetites. Not that these things are wrong and sinful in themselves, but rather because of the desire to turn one's attention to more serious things. But our prayers, our self-examinations, our atten-

THE GUINEA PIG PROVED IT

That dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair, are mostly due to a contagious disease is now recognized by dermatologists everywhere.
A notable demonstration was by Drs. Lassar and Bishop, who took dandruff scales from the head of a student who was losing his hair and having made a pomade of them with vaseline, rubbed the same upon a guinea pig, and the pig became bald. (See Geo. Thomas Jackson, M. D., on diseases of the skin, 4th edition).

The success of Newbro's Herpicide in the eradication of this contagion is quite extraordinary. Neglect and delay only add to the trouble. Begin today with Herpicide and watch the improvement. Stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. Try it.

Send 10 cents in stamps to The Herpicide Company, Dept. 108-B, Detroit, Mich., for sample and booklet.

SERBIANS' PROBLEMS MOST SERIOUS ONES

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS ARE FORCED TO ABANDON HOMES AND FARMS BECAUSE OF WAR.

NEED AID OF AMERICA

Land That Was Used for Growing of Grain Now Battle Areas in Austrian Invasion.—People Suffering.

Kragujevac, Serbia, Feb. 24.—The distressing feature of the situation in Serbia is the difficulty of rehabilitation of the hundreds of thousands who were obliged to abandon homes and lands that became battle areas during the Austrian invasion. Officers of the Serbian government see no reason why the people should not return, but the difficulty lies in providing them with grain for replanting and feeding them until new crops are harvested. This task has been undertaken by the government, but is handicapped by the lack of railway facilities and the almost impassable roads. Help abroad is being sought by the government for this agricultural rehabilitation.

Societies that have operated in former years to instruct the rural population in methods of intensive farming have been demoralized by the war. In such rapid succession, therefore, despite all the government is seeking to accomplish a victory is to get the impression that, no body in Serbia is doing anything that does not pertain to the survival of the army. Women and children have to be sacrificed to the needs of the grown male population who must be kept in fighting trim and in the fighting line at all cost.

Accustomed to Poverty. Everywhere in Serbia The Associated Press correspondent heard the national flag, that the country "is fighting not only for the maintenance of her present area, with its population of over four millions, but for the liberation of the Slav states of Austria-Hungary. If she succeeds, some eleven millions will be added to her population and every one recognizes that so gigantic a task, even with Russia's aid, cannot be accomplished without supreme sacrifice.

The Serbians are accustomed to poverty and hardship, but there are said to be a million persons really suffering distress from lack of food and clothing. They have never been reduced to such destitution before. And the Serbians are contented with so little. The army lives chiefly on bread and soup and most of the peasants, even in normal times, do not eat meat except on feast days. Help from the Slavs in America, liberal though it has been, is not adequate to meet the situation. There is here a call for the aid of the American philanthropic resources. The government issues a call of bread a day to every destitute family, but this is far from sufficient in many cases.

Hospitals inadequate. There are some six thousand wounded soldiers here now and medical supplies are still inadequate. The first reserve hospital, a part of English nurses, who were brought here at the beginning of the war with Madame Slavko Grouitch, the American wife of the Serbian minister, has been placed at the disposal of the Red Cross work at Nish and it was on her advice that the American Red Cross Mission was placed at Kragujevac. HARBINGER OF SPRING IS AGAIN ON THE JOB

Lowly Skunk Now Claims a Place As Prophet of Spring's Early Advent. It is said that the skunk has awakened from his winter's sleep. You may not be interested and, as a matter of fact, you may not even know that he has been asleep, but there are a lot of things about skunks which are really rather interesting, says the Indianapolis News. Some of us are a little like the high school girl who blushed and stammered when someone told her that she was a skunk. She had thought all the time that they were evil. "Skunk!" she asked, "skunk? Why, they can't be! At least I thought they were!" She became pale, but her confusion was the better of it—"I thought that a skunk was just a smell." And so many of us, although we really know better, have always thought of the skunk as just a smell. The truth is, however, that he is one of the earliest and best harbingers. He goes to sleep in November but wakes early in February. Then, as soon as he is sure that spring is really coming and that he will not get too awfully hungry and cold if he gets up, he sticks his nose out of his house in the morning. The sun is bright and the air is warm and perhaps makes a little journey in the warmth of noon and grubs a little round the logs or under the leaves in the woods. Of course, his house is rather in need of some cleaning and can usually detect, some distance away, the fact that he has opened his door. That is the way you usually know that he is out with his message of spring, but it is hardly possible that you may actually see him some morning. Later in the season, he will go out only at night, but just now he takes his exercise in the daytime, if you do see him you will feel sorry for him because he looks very ragged and poor and starved, but it will never do to be too hospitable to him or to encourage his friendly attentions. He is going to have an enormous appetite for the next month or so and will not be content with grub worms and ants. Indeed, he is something of an epicure and prefers eggs and chickens and honey to crawling things. He may be abused and he may be a harmless little animal, but it is doubtful if he will ever prove popular as a neighbor or a guest, although we may consent to accept his services as a harbinger.

Why Westfield Objects to Alum In Food Products.

Twelfth of a series to appear on the Food Page of this paper each Thursday.

THAT alum is not a fit ingredient of human food seems undebatable. No less authority than Park, Davis & Company, one of the largest drug firms in the country, in their manual of Therapeutics, have this to say concerning alum:

"Powerful astringent (causes living animal tissue to contract). Rarely used internally, except in painters' colic."

This substance finds its greatest use as a food adulterant in low grade pickles, condiments, etc. It is employed in cheap baking to furnish a low cost acid to act on the baking soda, and in pickles and condiments to impart a false appearance of freshness and crispness.

Alum indisputably is of value in relieving painter's colic, but it has no place in foods for human consumption.

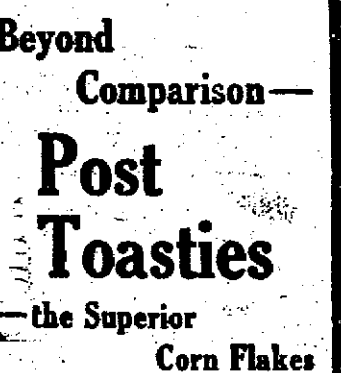

Alum indisputably is of value in relieving painter's colic, but it has no place in foods for human consumption. Strychnine, for instance, is a tonic in certain cases, but it is not for general use. Physicians may prescribe alum if they choose, but the food manufacturer has no right to dose both sick and well alike. It should be understood that all of the alum put into a cheap product does not go into the system as alum. It splits with the soda into several compounds: Aluminum hydroxide, sodium sulphate, commonly known as "Glauber's salts," potassium sulphate and carbon dioxide. This latter is the leavening gas. "Stop your attacks on alum," says the spokesman of the food adulterators. "You are threatening our great industry." Most manufacturers of food products who are using alum state the presence of this objectionable drug on the label. You will never find this statement in large type prominently displayed, but in small type [To be continued.]

Benetol Kills Germs Causing Sore Gums

B. S. Reports This Non-Poisonous and Safe Antiseptic a Superior Germ Killer to Even Deadly Carbolic Acid.

Up to the time that Prof. Carl discovered, in the laboratories of the University of Minnesota, the new chemical product called Benetol (scientifically Glycerine of Naphthol) there existed no germ killer that could be used in the mouth sufficiently strong to really kill germs without great danger of poisoning. Now Benetol has been proven harmless even when four ounces are taken into the stomach, and yet tests by U. S. authorities show it to be a much more powerful germ killer than even virulent carbolic acid. (See Government Bulletin No. 52.)

Of course, this means an end to pyorrhea, sore bleeding or spungy gums, mouth cankers, raw throats and tonsillitis, for these are all due to germs that can now be easily reached and speedily by Benetol. You need Benetol for both household and personal use. Throw away those weak, powerless "antiseptics" such as peroxide of hydrogen, for U. S. tests show it to have almost no germ killing power. (See page 65, U. S. Government Bulletin No. 52.) A drop of Benetol is worth a spoonful of them. Throw away such deadly, dangerous chemicals as carbolic acid and bichloride of mercury. Let Benetol, the SAFE and SURE germicide, protect your health.

At drugists—25c. and 50c. bottles, with full directions. Valuable booklet in every package. If your neighborhood drugist has no Benetol, ask him to get it for you.

The Benetol Co., Minneapolis, guarantees the truth of its advertisement.

Benetol is sold in Janesville by Smith Pharmacy, 14 West Milwaukee St., McCue & Buse, Empire Drug Store, 14 S. Main St.

THE LADY AND THE PIRATE

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1913, by Emerson Hough

I turned now to find Helena and met L'Olonnois, his face beaming.

"Wasn't that a peach of a shot?" said he. "It would of blew you varlet out of the water if I'd had anything to load with except just them marbles. Are you looking for Auntie Helen? She has just went below."

My boy had ironed my trousers—that is to say, the trousers I had given him the year previous and which he now had loaned to me, my extremity being greater than his own. He had laundered my collars—a most useful boy, my China boy. I had, moreover, delving in Cal Davidson's wardrobe, discovered yet another waistcoat, if possible more radiant even than the one with pink stripes, for that it was crosshatched with bars of pale pea green and mauve. I know not from what looms he obtained these wondrous fabrics. Thus bravely attired after breakfast, just before luncheon, indeed, it was, I felt emboldened to call upon the captive ladies once more.

I knocked, and there appeared the august visage of Auntie Lucinda herself.

"Well, sir-r-r-r!" said she after a time, regarding me sternly. I can by no means reproduce the awfulness of her "r's."

"Yes, madam?" I replied mildly, holding my nose, which had been smitten by the door.

She made no answer, but stood, a basilisk in mien.

"I just came, my dear Mrs. Daniver," I began, "to ask you—"

"And time you did, sir-r-r-r! I was just coming to ask you—"

"And time you did, my dear Mrs. Daniver. I have missed you so much these several days, so I just called to ask for your health."

"You need not trouble about my health!"

"But I do, I do, madam. I give you my word I was awake all night thinking of—of your neuralgia. Neuralgia is something—something fierce, in a manner of speech—if one has it in the morning, my dear Mrs. Daniver."

"Don't 'dear Mrs. Daniver' me! I'm not your dear Mrs. Daniver at all."

Then Helena appeared.

"A very good orange," said Helena after she had tasted the one I handed her.

"Yes," said her aunt promptly. "I'm sure we ought to thank Mr. Davidson for them. He was such a good provider!"

"Except in waistcoats," I protested, casually indicating his latest contribution to my wardrobe. "Quantity, yes. I grant that, but as to quality, never! But why speak ill of the absent, especially regarding matters of an earlier and bygone day? You varlet no longer exists for us—we no longer exist for him. We have passed, as two ships pass yonder in the channel. I know not what he may be doing now, unless carrying roses to Miss Sally Byington. Certainly he cannot know that I, his hated rival, am safe from all pursuit behind the Timberline shoals and carrying oranges to a young lady in my belief almost as beautiful as the beautiful Sally."

Aunt Lucinda turned upon me a beautiful eye. "You grow flippant as well as rude, sir! As though you knew anything of that Byington girl. I doubt if you ever saw her."

"Oh, yes—last night. Miss Emory and I both saw her last night at Leitz's. As for your varlet's providing, while I would not too much criticize a man whose waistcoats I wear even under protest, it is but fair to say that these oranges and all the fresh things taken on at New Orleans, are of my providing and not his. He was so busy providing other things for Miss Sally Byington."

"I don't think she is so beautiful," said Helena, ceasing with her orange. "Her color is so full. Very likely she'll be blown in a few years."

"How can you say so?" I retorted, with much virtuous indignation.

"You don't think so yourself?" she remarked.

"Think what?"

"That she is so beautiful."

"No, I do not. Not as beautiful as—"

"Look at the funny bird!" said Helena suddenly. Yet I could see nothing out of the ordinary in the sea bird she pointed out skimming and skipping close by.

"Sir," demanded Aunt Lucinda, also suddenly, "how long is this to last?"

"You mean the orange dish, Mrs. Daniver?" I queried politely. "As long as you like. I also am a good provider, although to no credit, as it seems."

"You know I do not mean the oranges, sir. I mean this whole foolish business. You are putting yourself liable to the law. Why did you do this crazy thing?" she continued.

"To marry Helena and with your free consent as her next friend," said I, swiftly turning to her, "since I must be equally frank. Please don't go!" I said to Helena, for now, very pale, she was starting toward the cabin door. But she paid no heed to me and passed.

"So now you have it plainly," said I to Mrs. Daniver.

She turned on me a face full of surprise and anger mingled. "How dare you after all that has passed? You left the girl years ago. You have no business, no fortune, not even the girl's consent. I'll not have it. I love her."

The good woman's lips trembled.

"So do I," said I gently. "That is why we all are here. It is because of this madness called love. Ah, Mrs. Daniver, if you only knew! If I could make you know! But surely you do know. You, too, have loved. Come. May you not love a lover, even one like myself? I'll be good to Helena. Believe me, she is my one sacred charge in life. I love her. Not worthy of her, no, but I love her."

"That's too late." But I saw her face relent at what she heard. "I have other plans. And you should have told her what you have told me."

"Ah, have I not?" But then I suddenly remembered that, by some reversal of my logical mind, here I was making love to Auntie Lucinda, whom I did not love, whereas in the past I had spent much time in mere arguing with Helena, whom I did love.

"I'm not sure that I've ever made it plain enough to her, that's true," said I slowly. "But if she gives me the chance I'll spend all my life telling her that very thing. That, since you ask me, is why we all are here, so that I may tell Helena—and you and all the world that very thing. I love her very much."

"But suppose she does not love you?" demanded Mrs. Daniver. "I'll say frankly, I've advised her against you all along. She ought to marry a man of some station in the world."

"With money?"

"You put it badly, but—yes."

"Would that be enough—money?" I asked.

"No. That is not fair—"

"Only honor between us now."

"It would go for today, because, after all, money means power, and all of us worship power, you know—success."

"And is that success—to have money and then more money and to go on piling up more money; to have more summer places and more yachts like this and more city houses and more money, money, money—yes, yes, that's American, but is it all, is it right, is it the real ambition for a man? And does that bring a woman happiness?"

"What would you do if you had your money back?" asked Mrs. Daniver. "You had a fortune from your father."

"What would I do?" I rejoined hotly. "What I did do—settle every claim against his honor as much as against his estate—judge his honor by my own standards and not his. Pay my debts, pay all my debts. It's independence, madam, and not money that I want. It's freedom, Mrs. Daniver, that I want and not money. So far as it would be the usual money, buying all most nothing that is worth owning, I give you my solemn oath I don't care enough for it to work for it. So far as it would help me be a man, help me to build my own character, help me to build manhood and character in my country—yes, I'd like it for that. But if money were the price of Helena herself I'd not ask for it. The man who would court a girl with his money and not his manhood—the woman who marries for money or the man who does—what use has God Almighty got for either of them? It's men and women and things worth doing that make this world, Mrs. Daniver. I love her so much, so clearly, so wholly, that I think it must be right. And, since you've asked me, I've taken my man's chance to get you two alone where I could talk it over with you both."

"It's been talked over, Harry," said she, rather uncomfortably. "Why not let the poor child alone? Has it occurred to you how terribly hard this is for her?"

"Yes, but she can end it easily. Tell me, is she engaged to Davidson?"

"What difference?"

"None."

"Why ask, then?"

"Tell me!"

"Well, then, no, not so far as I know."

"You are sorry?"

"I had hope for it. It was all coming on so handsomely. At Natchez he was—he was—well, you know—"

"Almost upon the point?"

"Quite so, I thought I believed that between there and—"

"Say between there and Baton Rouge?"

"Well, yes—"

"He would come to the main point?"

"Yes."

"And he did not?"

"You can best answer. It was at Natchez that you and those ruffianly boys ran off with Mr. Davidson's boat!"

"That's all, your honor," I remarked. "Take the witness, Mr. Davidson!"

"But what right you have to cross question me I don't know!" commented Mrs. Daniver, addressing a passing seagull and pulling down the corners of her mouth most forbiddingly.

"My disused and forgotten art comes back to me once in a while, my dear Mrs. Daniver," I answered exultantly. "Pray, do you notice how beautiful all the world is this morning? The sky is so wonderful, the sea so adorable, don't you see?"

CHAPTER XVI.

In Which is a Storm.

It must be understood that our party on the Belle Helena was divided into two, or, rather, indeed, three camps, each somewhat sharply defined and each somewhat ignorant of the other's doings in detail. The combination of either two against the other in organized mutiny might very well prove successful, wherefore it was my task to keep all apart by virtue of the authority which I had myself usurped. The midship's cabin suit of three rooms was occupied by myself and my two bold young mates when the latter were not elsewhere engaged. We made what might be called the ruling classes. Forward of our cabin and accessible only from the deck was the engine room, where Williams worked, and off this were two bunks, well ventilated and very comfortable, occupied by Williams and Peterson. Forward of this, and also accessible only from the deck, lay the dining saloon, with its fixed table, its cupboards, dish racks and wine room. In her bows and below the saloon was the cook's gallery, a dumb waiter running between, and the sleeping quarters of John, the cook, and Willy, the deck hand, were in the forecastle below. This left the two captives all the after part of the ship pretty much to themselves, and as the after suit of cabins was roomy and fitted with every modern nautical luxury they lacked neither freedom nor comfort, so far as these may obtain on shipboard. Obviously I said little to the ship's crew, except to Peterson, and my two mates had orders to keep to their own part of the ship, under my eye.

Thus, like ancient Gaul, divided into three parts, we satled on our wholly indefinite voyage, and all I could do was to live from day to day or hour to hour. I was content, for Helena was there. Indeed, I question if these last three years her image had not been always present in my consciousness, such are the forces of our unreasoning blood, such the power of that madness known as love.

But, thus divided as was our company, I had none such excellent opportunity for often seeing Helena as might at first be supposed. She and her aunt refused to join us at any meal in the dining saloon, although now and then they came for breakfast to what Auntie Lucinda with scorn called the "second table." It was not feasible for me often to do more than call of a morning to inquire if all was well with them, and conversation through a lead glass transom is not what one would call intimate.

Hardly had we three—Black Bart, Jean Lafitte and Henri L'Olonnois—seated ourselves at table for luncheon before I became sensible of a faint shadow at the saloon stair. I saw a trim boot and a substantial ankle, which I knew belonged to Aunt Lucinda, and then I looked up and saw on the deck Helena also, stooped, her clean cut head, with its blond hair, visible against the blue sky.

"May I come in?" she asked gayly enough.

"You are always invited," said I, and perhaps I flushed in my pleasure.

"John," I called, down the tube, "two more—the ladies!" And I heard his calm "All right."

Dinner Stories

One cold wintry morning a thin man was walking down a steep hill. He slipped, began to slide and was unable to stop.

At a cross street half way down he encountered a fat woman, with her arms full of bundles. The meeting was sudden. A collision ensued and both slid down hill—the thin man underneath.

When the bottom was reached, the thin man gasped:

"Pardon me, madam, but you will have to get off here. This is as far as I go."

A visiting minister preached on a recent Sunday evening in a little church on the subject of "Giving."

During the sermon his heart was rejoiced by the fact that a member of the congregation tipped over to the side of the church and placed a coin in a box, and a little later another did the same. Surely, the minister thought, his sermons had never met with so practical a response before.

On leaving, he was accosted by one of the brethren, who said: "I hope we didn't disturb you, sir; but ours is a penny-in-the-slot meter, and we should have been in darkness if we didn't attend to it."

The young man in the bureau of information laid the railroad guide down and looked reproachfully at the woman who had turned in a volley of questions.

"Madam," he said, "you can't possibly take all these trains you are asking about."

"I know it," she replied serenely, "but as long as I didn't have anything else to do I thought I'd just see for myself how much you railroad men really know about your business."

Consider for a moment the cost of a one cent stamp $1,200, the printing of circular matter, the cost of envelopes and the tremendous work of preparing and mailing so many pieces of printed matter, AND THEN WHERE COULD YOU SECURE THE UP-TO-THE-MINUTE MAILING LISTS?

The Wisconsin Daily League is a business organization consisting of 25 daily newspapers published in the best cities of the state and covering a field of many other cities, towns and villages, rural districts, etc. These 25 daily newspapers are distributed every day into more than 120,000 homes—the best homes, in fact.

Your message can be sent to all these homes through the columns of these papers for a fraction of the cost of any other mode of Wisconsin home covering; were it possible to get to these homes otherwise—and it isn't.

A classified advertisement of 36 words inserted three times will cost you $18.10.

A 3-inch display advertisement inserted each other day 33 times will cost you $15.63 each insertion or $515.79 total.

Longer periods cost comparatively less.

The convenience in using the Wisconsin Daily League appeals to the advertiser. Send your order and check to the secretary or to any member, it will be taken care of at once. Sample copies of all papers will be sent you on request. Information about any and all of the 25 fields if you wish it. Let us help you map out your advertising campaign.

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $2 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule contain a large quantity of plain syrup. A pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes, gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiaac, and has been used for generations to heal inflamed membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THE RATE FOR ADVERTISEMENTS in these classified columns is one cent per word per insertion. Nothing less than 25c accepted. Cash discount 25 per cent if paid at time order is given. Charge accounts 1 cent per word.

Want Ad Sells Rubber Boots for Boy

The other day a Janesville boy discovered that his rubber boots were too small. They were perfectly good as he had worn them but little last year. Did he throw them away or sell them for old rubber?

Not this lad. He knew he could get a better price for them than the rag man would give. He figured that some other boy could wear them and would jump at the chance of buying them if it was known.

He advertised them in the Gazette want columns. Result—That night he had response enough to make a day's business for a shoe store.

Today that boy has some extra spending money and another boy has a pair of rubber boots for which he paid half the price of a new pair.

It costs little to advertise in the want columns. A cent a word with a 25 per cent discount for cash with order.
